EXPLANATORY NOTES REGARDING PERFORMANCE

Past performance is not a reliable indicator of future performance. Performance is calculated based on the net asset value (NAV). The subscription fee, as well as other fees, are not taken into account and therefore have a negative effect on the performance of the investment. Example calculation (subscription fee included): An investor wishes to buy shares with capital of €1,000. Based on a maximum subscription fee of 5%, €50 will be deducted from their investment as a one off initial charge. In addition, custody fees may be applied.

Please refer to the cost details presented in this document to determine the maximum subscription fee for the share class of the sub-fund.

The reference index is merely informative. It does not constitute any obligation to track the index or achieve the same performance for the fund manager.

MONTHLY COMMENTARY

Following weak performance at the end of 2018, stock markets made a positive start to the New Year. The fund benefited greatly from this upwards movement, gaining more than four per cent in January. Our use of the crisis mood in December to increase selected equity positions paid off. Based on the market as a whole, equity valuations had not been so attractive for five years – while yields on 10-year German government bonds (Bunds) were once again approaching zero. Our belief that investors need not worry about the major central banks implementing restrictive monetary policy was confirmed in January. European Central Bank (ECB) President Mario Draghi stated that central bankers are now more negative about various risk factors. US Federal Reserve (Fed) Chairman Jerome Powell even signalled that the Fed's rule-bound balance sheet tapering could also be approached more flexibly. We therefore do not expect any further interest-rate increases to be performed in the USA until economic conditions become highly positive. Fundamental problems nevertheless remain unresolved. In December 2018, market participants focused on the many risks that existed – from Brexit and eurozone problems to the global trade conflict and Chinese economic growth. In our view, however, the price reductions recorded by cyclical securities were already signalling an escalation of a number of crises or a true recession. Following the disaster sentiment that prevailed at the end of the year, a lack of concern reappeared relatively quickly in parts of the capital market. After double-digit percentage price increases in previous weeks, large equity positions in the Fund are even trading at or near their all-time highs. On its own, of course, this is not enough to justify a decision to sell. Rising prices nevertheless reduce the risk buffer, which is why we made anticyclical adjustments or realised gains on some positions in January. The equity allocation decreased around four percentage points in January. Our cash position of 14.5 % allows us to act flexibly if prices fall. In the long term, a robust portfolio, intelligent diversification and non-binary timing are the best protection against crises. Equities therefore remain the most attractive asset class in our view, in spite of the apparent economic slowdown that has occurred in the meantime. This is the reason for the Fund's equity allocation of 68.6 %.

OPPORTUNITIES

- + Flexible investment policy without benchmarking.
- + Risk is broadly diversified by investing in a range of asset classes (e.g. equities, bonds, convertible bonds and precious metals indirect). Market potential can be exploited by investing across a wide range.
- + Investing in assets denominated in a foreign currency can have a positive impact on unit values as a result of exchange rate movements.
- + Derivatives can be used to increase potential yields.
- + Precious metals (indirect) (e.g. in the form of gold) can be used to increase potential yields.

RISKS

- Market risks: The securities in which the Management Company invests the sub-fund assets present opportunities for gain but also the possibility of risk. If a sub-fund invests directly or indirectly in securities and other assets, it is subject to many general trends and tendencies on the markets, which are sometimes attributable to irrational factors, particularly on the securities markets. Losses can occur when the market value of the assets decreases against the cost price. If a unit holder disposes of units in a sub-fund at a time when the quoted price of the sub-fund assets is less than at the time of investment, then the unit holder will not recover the full value of the investment. While each sub-fund constantly strives to achieve growth, growth cannot be guaranteed. The risk exposure of the investor is, however, limited to the sum invested. There is no obligation to make additional capital contributions beyond investors' investments.
- Currency risks: If a sub-fund holds assets which are denominated in foreign currencies, it shall be subject to currency risk. In the event of a devaluation of the foreign currency against the reference currency of the subfund, the value of the assets held in foreign currencies shall fall.
- Credit risks: The fund may invest part of its assets in bonds. The issuers of these bonds could become insolvent, causing the bonds to lose some or all of their value.
- Interest change risks: Investing in securities at a fixed rate of interest is connected with the possibility that the current interest rate at the time of issuance of a security could change. If the current interest rate increases as against the interest at the time of issue, fixed rate securities will generally decrease in value. Conversely, if the current interest rate falls, fixed rate securities will increase.
- Risks relating to the use of derivatives: The fund may enter into derivative transactions for the purposes listed in the KIID and the sales prospectus. This means increased opportunities, but also increased risk of losses. The use of derivatives to hedge against losses may also reduce the profit opportunities of the fund.
- Risks of precious metals and commodities: Precious metals and commodities may be subject to greater price fluctuations. Trading prices may also fall.

Please read the Prospectus and particularly the RISK WARNINGS section and the specific annex of the subfund to understand the risks and benefits of this product.

The historical data used for calculating the synthetic indicator is not a reliable indication of the future risk and reward profile of the share class. The category shown is not guaranteed to remain unchanged and may shift over time. Even the lowest category does not mean a risk-free investment. This share class has been placed in the aforementioned risk class because its unit price is subject to medium to significant fluctuation, therefore the profit potential and loss exposure may be moderate to high. Because of the calculation model used, all risks may not be taken into consideration when placing the share class in a risk class.
